

THE SERIES

THE WORKPLACE IS THE JOKE.

After losing their jobs at a comedy network, longtime creative partners Angela Foster and Ben Rizzo land at Freedom Stream, a flag-waving streaming service where they plan to collect a paycheck and keep their opinions to themselves.

That lasts about ten minutes.

Surrounded by oversized executive egos, baffling office politics, and coworkers with competing agendas, Angela and Ben turn survival into a shared art form. They make presidents sexy, write AI songs about their boss's busted shoes, and treat the arrival of free chocolate like a military operation. They're talented, they're exhausted, and they're frequently making things worse.

As their new workplace starts to feel like home, ambition, loyalty, and petty rivalries test a friendship built on making each other laugh.

Red, White & Screwed is a half-hour adult animated comedy about creative people, corporate absurdity, and the dangerous moment when a job you took for the benefits becomes a place you actually care about.

THE ENGINE

Angela and Ben plan to collect the paycheck and stop caring. The office makes that impossible. A revised Lincoln shoot, an AI song about busted shoes, and a mission for free chocolate turn survival into a shared art form. Talent, loyalty, and petty rivalries keep making things better and worse.

TONE & AUDIENCE

The entertainment-industry absurdity of The Studio and 30 Rock, the institutional savagery of Veep, and the unapologetic adult-animation energy of Harley Quinn and Archer.
